BATTLE OF THE BROWSERS! Mozilla Firefox vs. Internet Explorer

While at first impression Internet Explorer 9 may seem like the easiest browser to use, there is more to ease than the visual display of a browser. Simplicity is important but simplicity matched with a large range of compatibility exemplifies user-friendly.

The World Wide Web Consortium creates web standards that ensure that in every browser, the website viewed will look the same. Internet Explorer does not always follow the standards, having their own quirks that prevent users from carrying out specific actions that other browsers allow. The Internet Explorer team creates special features for them, resulting in a loss of compatibility. In addition, Firefox is less susceptible to crashes.

In the battle of Internet Explorer vs. Mozilla Firefox, the champion is Firefox without a doubt. If you find that your agent or office website will not allow you to access features, check which browser you are using. If it is Internet Explorer, it could be time for a change.

Tips & Suggestions

If you have ever faced issues with copy and pasting text into your website content pages it was most likely due to formatting incompatibility. To avoid formatting errors, first paste the content into Notepad to remove formatting (a standard program on your computer accessible through your Start Menu). Copy the content from Notepad and paste the unformatted content into your website content box. Use our formatting toolbar to change the look of the text.
